Salem Center School, District Number Five, was built by Charles Coppler in 1880. The building still stands on a half-acre plot of land directly east of the newer building.

The Salem School Building was started in the summer of 1920, completed, and school started in the fall of 1921. In the spring of 1924, a class of five was the first to graduate. Since that time 325 of this worlds citizens have received diplomas and graduated from these hallowed halls. Anno Domini 1957, with the help of our parents, the adminstration, and our fellow classmates, twelve more hope to reach this coveted goal.

The gymnasium was added in 1936 and first used in 1937. Since that time many dramas have portrayed both on the stage and on the floor.

It is our sincere wish that the future classes will profit by the experiences of their predecessors.

APPRECIATION

Our appreciation to the parents, teachers, band boosters, and faculty for their wonderful work and patience they have shown us cannot easily be expressed in words. There have been many times when they have been patient with our remarks and childish tricks because of the goodness in their hearts. We will always be grateful for their many last chances and for their sincere interest in our marks. Although many of us have never been able to show our feelings, we hope this appreciation will help them to understand.

DEDICATION

We, the class of 1957, dedicate our "Salem Memories" to Mr. Charles Shull, our Senior Class sponsor, Yearbook advisor, and very able director of our Senior Class Play. It was through his patience and helpful guidance that we have had a successful final year.

Mr. Shull, we extend to you our earnest thanks for all your efforts.

CLASS PROPHECY

The date is early September of 1967, about the time I always started to school during those twelve wonderful years. Now I am preparing to start another year of teaching Vocational Agriculture and the thought of facing those kids makes me realize the problems that our school teachers had to face. But during the summer vacation I found time to take a very extensive trip and visit all of my old classmates. Here is what I wrote in my Memo Book during the trip.

June 15th; started out from Upper Sandusky, where I am living. I drove in my 475 horsepower Lincolncar, first to Cincinnati, Ohio, where I stopped to get gas at a filling station. To my surprise, I met Ronny Miller who happened to be making a check on the station. He had recently been appointed president of the Standard Oil Company. He said he was married and had a large family. They were living in a twelve room mansion which his rich uncle had willed to him. So with the refreshing feeling of having met an old friend and classmate, I started on for the open road.

Getting great performance from my car, I was able to make Atlanta, Georgia, that night. After searching a while I drove into a nice looking motel called the J & H Tourist Rest, which was owned by Juanita Shearer and her husband. They just bought it for a sideline to supplement his job as an Insurance Executive. Juanita agreed that this was a little far south, but said that it still reminded her of good old Kentucky.

Following a good nights sleep and a delicious breakfast of southern cooking, I headed in the direction of Key West, Florida. It was now June 16th, and I wanted to visit another classmate before night. Taking the overseas highway, I arrived about 4:00 in Key West and went straight to a Beach Resort where I found Dave Hoepf bathing in the sun. He had just finished work for the day and said he would like to show me his business. So climbing into his helicopter we took off for the open sea. After about ten minutes we landed on a small island. A sign on a large building read, "Top Secret" so agreeing that Mum was the word we entered. Here was a basketball team, composed of partially natives practicing for all they were worth (and so were the native cheerleaders.) Dave explained that he was trying to build a team to beat the Harlem Globetrotters and he wanted it kept a secret until they were ready. Following the trip back and a stay at a hotel for the night, I arose early and set out for more scenery.

Pouring the gas to my car, I managed to hit the Ozarks by the night of the 17th. As accidents do happen, I ran out of gas on a back road. Walking a little ways through the swamp and trees I stumbled onto a little shack. A man came out with a double barrel shotgun in his hand but promptly dropped it when he recognized me. Lo and Behold it was Gaylon Rowe. He took me down to the cellar and showed me his pride and joy; you guessed it, a STILL. So after a few "refreshing" minutes we went to the shed and found some gas among the other barrels and drums, and I was on my way. Never did find out why he carried the gun. He must have been doing something illegal.

Since I didn't feel sleepy, I drove all night and made El Paso, Texas, the next morning. I thought I would like a good hearty breakfast so I stopped at Paul Summit's ranch, and what a ranch. It included 9,000 acres, 1,000 chickens, and 500 head of beef cattle standing in the shade of 50 oil wells. Paul was glad to see me and I was glad to see him and we chatted as we ate breakfast. With all those cattle what do you think we had for breakfast -- Oatmeal. Anyway with a good meal under my belt I bade good-bye and headed farther west.

Arriving in California I happened to recall that Margaret Gottfried was employed as a nurse at San Francisco. But I was surprised that she had been selected as a special nurse to the infirmary at Alcatraz. However she said she enjoyed working with people who had such a secure future ahead of them. Heading North from San Francisco I left for the Canadian border. Just after crossing the border I stopped at a small village for supper. Sitting at the table in the back of the room was Sergeant Arden Mittermaier of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police with his dog Queen. He had many stories to tell of his adventures in the northern regions. I liked the one about the last trip to the Klondike, now let's see, what was that now. Oh well, I didn't really believe it anyway. Coming back across the border I happened to think that a trip out west wouldn't be complete without visiting Las Vegas. So heading my car in that direction I drove on. When I arrived I stopped in at the Golden Nugget for a try at my luck. While I was standing around looking, the entertainers started to perform and there on the stage was Betty Lou Koehler as a chorus girl.

She told me after the show that it had always been her secret desire to perform on the stage so when the opportunity came for her to come out here, she came. So feeling that I had better be on my way before I ran out of money I headed in the direction of Detroit.

I arrived in Detroit on the morning of the 20th and went to the Ford Motor Company. Greeting me as I entered was the Vice-President in charge of Designing, Paul Beach. Paul showed me around the plant and also showed me his newest design which was a wal-la-pa-looa. It resembled a F-86 Sabre Jet built like a caterpillar and had two front ends; one for regular driving and one for New York City traffic. After spending far too much time there I thanked him and hit the road again. After a brief stop at Niagara Falls, I arrived in New York City. Feeling like I could stand a little music I attended the Metropolitan Opera. By mere coincidence they were featuring the great soprano Dorothy "High Note" Dickey. She gave a great concert and after it I went back stage to congratulate her. She thanked me and told me that she was appearing in the new MGM picture called "24 Hours in Flatbush." I promised not to miss it. With the end of my trip nearing I headed for Washington D.C. and the capitol. There I met coming out of the senate chamber, Jessie Davidson, the first woman senator from Ohio. She introduced me to the President and the other high officials and we had dinner at the White House. She explained that she liked her job except that it kept her away from her husband too long. So feeling like I had had a wonderful, successful trip I stayed at a motel in Washington and the next morning headed for home. It had taken me only seven days to visit all my former classmates but in that time I gathered a lasting friendship for them which I will never forget.

HOBGOBLIN HOUSE

"Hobgoblin House" is, at the same time a spine-chilling mystery and an uproarious comedy. Miss Priscilla Carter, an old maid aunt, peeved because her two nieces, Marian and Jill, have fallen in love with two silly young nincompoops, purchased the grim old Hobgood House in the foothills of the Ozarks where she plans to keep the girls separated from their boyfriends for at least six months on penalty of being disinherited.

Just as luck would have it, they arrive on the very night that Old bluebeard Bronson, who once committed murder in the house, is supposed to revisit the scene of his crime.

PEOPLE ARE FUNNY

The Saunders family, all eight of them, are a very lively and engaging group. It can truly be said, there's never a dull moment in the Saunders household, with Grandpa Saunders as lively as the teen agers.

It's football season and Bob Saunders is captain of the team. The whole family lives and dreams football, for both Gramps and Mr. Saunders were football men in their day; and most of the off-the-field activities center around the Saunders home.

The season's sensational player is Johnny, a student from a nearby reservation, whose Indain name is Silver-Water-Runs-Fast. Complications pile up when Roberta Saunders is carried away by Johnny's romantic sounding name and his football prowess but is forced to ignore her hero because being just an Indain from the reservation, he is excluded from all the social activities of the school. Which caused Gramps to think people generally are funny and some in particular are downright odd; and he sets about showing them up.

Then

Good that people

Now

Salem Center School, District Number Five, was built by Charles Coppler in 1880. The building still stands on a half-acre plot of land directly east of the newer building.

The Salem School Building was started in the summer of 1920, completed, and school started in the fall of 1921. In the spring of 1924, a class of five was the first to graduate. Since that time 325 of this worlds citizens have received diplomas and graduated from these hallowed halls. Anno Domini 1957, with the help of our parents, the adminstration, and our fellow classmates, twelve more hope to reach this coveted goal.

The gymnasium was added in 1936 and first used in 1937. Since that time many dramas have portrayed both on the stage and on the floor.

It is our sincere wish that the future classes will profit by the experiences of their predecessors.
